

Uni scraps degree courses at college

Anglia Ruskin blames apprenticeships-only switch on declining roll

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

ANGLIA Ruskin University will no longer offer traditional degree courses at Harlow College due to declining student numbers.

However, current undergraduate students in the town will not be affected, the university has pledged.

University Centre Harlow (UCH) opened in 2012 in a partnership between Anglia Ruskin and Harlow College. It will continue to operate with a focus on apprenticeship degrees.

A spokesman from Anglia Ruskin, which also has campuses in Chelmsford, Cambridge, Peterborough and other sites, said: "Unfortunately declining student numbers have meant we have had to take the difficult decision to end recruitment for courses at UCH."

Completion

"The decision will not affect current students in any way, and they will continue studying at UCH until the completion of their courses."

The £11 million centre currently offers degrees in bioscience, child development, graphic design, engineering and other subjects.

Recruitment has now ended for all degree courses with the exception of BA (hons) Early Years Professional Practice (top-up). This will have one more intake in September to allow those studying for the qualifying award to progress and finish their studies at UCH.

The Anglia Ruskin spokesman added that NCTJ journalism was unaffected and will continue at the college.

Karen Spencer, principal of Harlow College, said: "Anglia Ruskin University is continuing their partnership with Harlow College but with a focus on higher

LESS OF THIS: Students celebrating at Harlow College; from now on the centre will no longer offer traditional degree courses in the town and degree apprenticeships.

"This complements the college's own higher education offer including a wide range of higher national diplomas, certificates, professional diplomas and access to higher education. Technical education is a key strength of the college and this approach best focuses our resources."

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow and minister of state for education, said: "I am passionate about apprenticeships."

"Degree apprenticeships are an incredible offering to the town. You get a degree, an apprenticeship and you are almost guaranteed a job at the end of it."

"There is also no loan to pay back. Young people have the opportunity to earn while they learn. I think the fact Harlow (College) is turning to this great for the town."

He added: "We are changing technical education in our country to make it more accessible to everyone."

Councillor Jon Clempner, leader of Harlow Council, said: "There is a growing need for degree apprenticeship qualifications to respond to the needs of businesses and young people in Harlow and the surrounding area."

"The council would like to see the growth of university provision in Harlow and will be working with the university to identify how its strategy for the future can deliver it."

SCENE: The fire broke out in the kitchen of the Finchmoor home

Pensioner homeless after fire caused by toaster

AN ELDERLY woman has been left homeless by a house fire.

Crews were called to a property in Finchmoor, Harlow, on Thursday, January 19 after a blaze broke out in the kitchen.

Two fire engines dispatched from Harlow arrived at the scene at 12.47pm and had the fire extinguished by 1.08pm.

The blaze is thought to have been started by a faulty toaster.

The kitchen had been left completely destroyed.

Residents of Finchmoor recalled the volume of fumes that could be seen coming from the front door with one describing the smoke as a "terrific amount".

Quiet

The elderly homeowner was described by residents as a quiet lady who often kept herself to herself.

A neighbour said: "We are concerned about her. Although she has carers, she lives alone."

"She had been upstairs a lot recently as she hadn't been very well."

The elderly lady received care from the ambulance service after she suffered smoke inhalation.

A spokesman from Essex County Fire and Rescue Service, said: "Electrical appliances, plugs and cables that are old or poorly wired can be a real danger in your home."

"There are particular danger signs to look out for on all electrical items you have around your home."

"If you think something needs fixing or changing, do it straight away."

HEADS TOGETHER: Tim West, head teacher of Potter Street Academy with head teacher Christine Peden of Pear Tree Mead Academy

A class way of responding to demand for school places

A NEW classroom block will help a school cater for a town-wide rise in demand for primary places.

Pear Tree Mead Academy has now adopted a two-form, 60-child entry after being asked by Essex County Council to expand.

Town leaders visited the school in Pear Tree Mead, Harlow, on Tuesday for the opening of the £1.7 million building, which contains four classrooms, two group rooms and a library.

Christine Peden, head teacher, said: "It is lovely to see months of building work come together and see people celebrate the opening.

"The new building joins two separate buildings together.

"There are four new classrooms, two group rooms, a new library and a new staff room.

"We currently take 45 children per year group but with the new classrooms we can take 60 children per year group. It will be a slow expansion over the next few years.

"We have taken extra children for a couple of years already. There is a great need for places in the area, lots of schools have been asked by Essex (County Council) to expand."

Jon Clempner, leader of Harlow Council, cut the ribbon alongside Mrs Peden while Ray Gooding, County Hall cabinet member for education, was an invited guest.

A tree was also planted in memory of influential head teacher Christine Thurgood who recently passed away. Members of her family attended the opening ceremony.

Council tax rise of 2% will protect community services and facilities

Town residents in tax band C set to pay an extra 9p a week

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

COUNCIL tax is expected to rise by two per cent in Harlow as leaders seek to protect leisure facilities.

If the proposed 2017/18 Harlow Council budget is passed, residents in council tax band C will pay 9p a week more.

The Labour-led administration is expected to vote through the budget which sees £721,000 invested in community services, such as Pets' Corner, and £20,000 put aside for Harlow's 70th anniversary celebrations.

Council leader Jon Clempner said: "Our priority is to do what we can to ensure our services are not taken away from residents and no council staff are made redundant.

Budget

"But this is a budget which will celebrate our great town and what it has to offer with money for Harlow's 70th birthday and promoting the arts."

The district council's budget comes in the face of a £630,000 cut in its central government grant, which represents a total reduction of 51.7 per cent since 2013/14.

Mr Clempner said budget cuts have left the local authority needing to save £1.3 million in the financial year which begins in April.

The budget proposes no compulsory redundancies, allowances for council-

OPPOSITION: Andrew Johnson, shadow leader, was unhappy with the council tax increase lors will not be increased, £20,000 will be given towards the town's 70th birthday celebrations and another £20,000 will extend the opening of the Gibberd Gallery to Saturdays.

The council seeks to shave £1.1 million from its spending by not filling vacant positions as well as well as reducing printing and equipment costs.

More income could be raised through garage rents and land charges income from property sales.

Mr Clempner added: "I know increasing council tax again won't be popular with many but I am determined future of Harlow is sustainable and based on sound finances.

"A small rise of just 9p a week for the average council tax bill helps towards protecting services and jobs and this year we can give something back to Harlow and make it a year of celebrations."

The council tax rise met a mixed reception.

Councillor Andrew Johnson, shadow leader of the council, said: "It's sad that the administration feel the need to burden the hard working tax payers of Harlow with a council tax rise."

Ellie Bryant-Webb, Star reader, said: "I am not bothered about 9p and I won't miss it, but I am bothered they state it will go towards protecting services. What services?"

Increase

Kelly Mascard, another reader, said: "As long as my 36p a month is spent well (I don't mind). No one likes an increase in bills. No one is hardly going to notice this increase, however, it still needs to be put to good use."

Dave Luxford, commented on the Star Facebook page: "It is 9p a week. I won't notice it, nor will anyone else. Be realistic."

BACKED BUDGET: Jon Clempner

THE BUDGET

■ The transfer of £721,000 to the discretionary services fund to support popular community services such as Pets' Corner, Town Park paddling pools, Harlow Playhouse and to continue to support bonfire and fireworks night and Harlow Youth Council

■ There will also be no cuts or impact to the Town Park skate park or to the council-run Leah Manning Centre and Sam's Place (a service for young people with disabilities) which receive external funding

■ Charges in council-owned car parks will be frozen for the fourth year running with one-hour free parking staying in neighbourhood shopping centres and the Town Park

■ No compulsory redundancies

■ No increases in allowances for councillors

■ £20,000 to support Harlow's 70th birthday celebrations including making small grants available for events organised by local groups

■ £20,000 for the arts in Harlow with the money used to extend the opening of the Gibberd Gallery in the Civic Centre to include Saturdays

I'll walk a mile to prove just how far I've come

Solicitor unable to move or talk after haemorrhage in 2007

WORKING OUT: David had to learn how to walk again

By Charlotte Page

A MAN from Harlow has challenged himself to walk at least a mile, ten years after he was left unable to move following a brain haemorrhage.

David Chennells, 35, has spent years learning to speak and walk again after he suffered a subarachnoid haemorrhage in May 2007, aged just 26.

Mr Chennells, who was unable to return to his job as a solicitor, would like to raise awareness of brain injuries, especially in young people, and plans to walk through Harlow town centre with a group of friends and supporters to raise funds for the Brain and Spine Foundation.

Injury

The fundraising walk will be the furthest Mr Chennells has walked since his injury.

The planned date of the challenge is Saturday, April 29 to mark the tenth anniversary since Mr Chennells' haemorrhage and his 36th birthday.

Mr Chennells, said: "It's been hard work but I'm really motivated. I'm determined to walk a mile before reaching the tenth anniversary."

"Walking is important to me because it gets me out and about."

He continued: "It gives me freedom and independence. I like going on walks around my area."

"Without my simulator I wouldn't be able to walk at all."

In preparation for the challenge, Mr

SUPPORT: David met Harlow MP Robert Halfon to discuss his challenge

Chennells has been exercising most days at the gym using a tailored programme and completing a long walk once a week, so far managing 0.7 miles.

Mr Chennells, who is also a volunteer at both the Citizen's Advice Bureau and at Adult Community Learning in Harlow, met MP Robert Halfon to discuss his fundraising challenge and post-injury support.

After setting an initial target of raising £1,000, Mr Chennells has already raised £1,485.

He encourages anyone who has been affected by brain or spinal injury to join him on his walk.

Family and friends of those affected are also welcome to join.

Valentine's Ball will be a glam fundraiser

THE LITTLE Alice Theatre Company is preparing to host a special Valentine's Ball in aid of charity.

Eve-Marie Florence Darby, owner of the company which offers theatre and performing arts classes to children and young adults, wanted to run an event to fundraise for Upwards with Downs, a charity that she works alongside.

"Little businesses don't always get enough credit but they can still help in some way," said Eve-Marie.

"I hope to give back to the Harlow community and encourage other small businesses to do the same.

"We sometimes forget that Harlow does put on a lot of things and by working together, we can make some affordable."

Entertainment

All profits made from the evening will be donated to the charity which offers help and support to adults and children with Down's Syndrome.

Guests on the night can expect variety of entertainment from the likes of FUBAR, Acoustic Angels, Harlow Ballet and DJ NK Soundz who will all perform for free in order to support the event.

Speaking of some of the acts set to perform, Eve-Marie, said: "The performances are quite different and the likes of Harlow Ballet will hopefully give people a taste of a ballet who wouldn't normally watch it."

Guests will be welcomed by a bucks fizz reception and invited to enjoy a hot buffet before trying their luck in a special raffle.

The Valentine's Ball will take place at Great Parndon Community Centre, Harlow, on Saturday, February 11, from 7 until 11.30pm.

Dress code

Guests are encouraged to follow the glitz and glam dress code.

Tickets cost £25 or a table for ten people is priced at £200.

Pair moved from blitzed London to Harlow 'We saw the trees planted and watched them grow old'

A HUSBAND and wife who have lived in Harlow for 61 years have shared their thoughts on the town as it approaches its 70th birthday.

Dave, 90, and Noreen Gee, 87, moved from Thornton Heath in Croydon to Harlow in 1955 following the Second World War with their twin boys who were three and a half at the time.

Recommended

The couple were introduced to the town after one of Mr Gee's friends, who lived in Ladyshot, recommended the area.

"After the bombings, we had lost the ceilings in our house," said Mrs Gee. "When we first came to Harlow we couldn't believe it. It was clean and fresh. "There were open spaces and we could walk everywhere."

At the time when they moved, the development corporation worked to ensure that Harlow homes were taken care of.

"We had to pay two shillings extra a week to make sure that we looked after the property and if you did, you got it back at the end of the year," said Mrs Gee.

"You had to have permission to get a small shed and ask the neigh-

Speaking of Sir Frederick Gibberd's influence on the town, Mr Gee, a former book binder at Dorset Press Ltd, said: "He was way ahead of his time."

"He built all the roads wide enough to have a dual carriage and the cycle tracks in the town go everywhere."

"I remember seeing just one car, an Austin 7, on the way to The Stow from Maddox Road one day."

Mrs Gee, who worked at the Classified newspaper placing vacancy adverts, added: "We were fortunate enough to have a car. They all had to be parked the same direction and have a light at the back."

Over the years, Mr and Mrs Gee have seen the town change.

"We're sorry to have seen things go. In the market square you used to be able to buy everything and Broad Walk was known as Pram Town.

"The Harvey Centre was then developed and most recently The Water Gardens, which is lovely."

However, speaking of what they love most about the town, Mr and Mrs Gee both agreed on Harlow Town Park.

Mr Gee, said: "We've watched the park grow. We've seen the trees going in and have watched them grown old.

"Some of them now are 70ft or 80ft tall, it's amazing! Children had freedom to play and go to the woods and do ditch jumping."

Other favourites of the couple, who have been married for 67 years, include the Olympic size diving boards at Harlow Swimming Pool and The Regal cinema, which was on the factory estate before the Odeon was built.

WHAT MAKES OUR TOWN GREAT?

AS Harlow turns 70 in 2017, readers are celebrating by sharing their favourite things about the town. We hope to collect 70 responses from readers across the next few editions. Here are three to six:

■ 3. Dennis Nadin, of Willowfield, Harlow: "I like the way people say thank you to bus drivers when you get off the bus. We are the best place for doing that, and that is a good thing. It is something that has got better over the years and I think it is one of the things Harlow is good for."

■ 4. Karen Clempner, member of Harlow Council: "I love quite a few things about Harlow, but mainly the amount of green space we have. No matter where you are in Harlow you are not far from a green space where you can go for lovely walks and runs. "I also love the diversity of the town and its arts and culture. We have so many different ethnic groups in Harlow and beautiful sculptures by so many different artists. These are things we should always celebrate."

■ 5. Jon Clempner, leader of Harlow Council: "There are so many things, including the great green spaces, the nationally important sculpture collection, its history of innovation and creativity, the Town Park, and Pets corner, but most of all the people. When there are difficulties the community comes together to help each other out. Harlow has a great community spirit with so many people volunteering for local charities, involved with arts groups, sports clubs, and working together to make Harlow a better place. "While I won't see all of the next 70 years, I know that

Harlow has a great and exciting future."

■ 6. Neil Jackson, 50, formerly of Harlow and now lives in Dublin: "I try to get back to visit as much as possible only because I personally love the people the town and of course all my family live there. We have a train station and it takes 25 minutes to get to London. We have great walks along the River Stort. "My town is still great. I sure there is so much more to add. For love I moved to Dublin in 2003 but my heart and soul will always be a Harlow boy."

Whistleblower claims of bullying and MRSA risk

Serious accusations are being levelled at Princess Alexandra Hospital

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PATIENTS with the contagious and difficult-to-treat MRSA superbug are left on normal wards due to a lack of beds at Princess Alexandra Hospital, it has been claimed.

A member of clinical staff at the Harlow facility also claimed staff were appallingly treated by management and equated it to bullying.

The worker, who wishes to remain anonymous, also suggested the hospital is severely understaffed and equipment and buildings have fallen into a state of disrepair.

A spokeswoman for the Princess Alexandra Hospital Trust said patient safety remains a priority and bullying of staff is not tolerated.

Short-staffed

The whistleblower said: "I've seen people with MRSA sitting in normal wards.

"It's a space thing, there's just not enough space.

"There's not enough staff to do the work and look after patients properly. They are severely short-staffed."

UNABLE TO COPE? Princess Alexandra Hospital, Hamstel Road, Harlow

She added: "They recruit new staff but the way they are treated is appalling.

"It's just the way the managers speak to you, there's decisions being made without any staff being consulted. The staff who really care are being bullied to the point they are leaving."

PAH was rated "inadequate" by the Care Quality Commission last year and improvement measures have been introduced.

Last week, the trust's chief operating officer Steph Lawton joined Harlow MP Robert Halfon in calling for a new hospital in the town.

The current facility was built to cater for a population of 60,000 but is now having to cope with 110,000 people.

A spokeswoman for the hospital did not address the MRSA claim, but said: "The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust is working hard to ensure it offers sustainable and efficient services for patients now and in the future.

"Staff shortages and bed capacity is a national issue but patient safety remains our main priority and the trust follows strict procedures should any issues arise.

Robust

"The concerns of our staff are taken very seriously and we do not tolerate bullying. There are robust procedures in place to enable our staff to raise any concerns they may have.

"We recognise and appreciate that all our staff work extremely hard to provide safe and caring services in a challenging environment.

"The need for a new hospital in Harlow has been raised and we continue to work with our system partners to develop this as a viable option."

CONCERNS:

Stephanie Lawton, chief operating officer of Princess Alexandra Hospital Trust

RESISTANT STRAINS

MRSA is a type of bacteria resistant to a number of widely used antibiotics. This means MRSA infections can be more difficult to treat than other bacterial infections.

Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (also known as staph) is a common type of bacteria. It's often carried on the skin and inside the nostrils and throat, and can cause mild infections of the skin, such as boils and impetigo. If the bacteria get into a break in the skin, they can cause life-threatening infections, such as blood poisoning or endocarditis.

MRSA bacteria are usually spread through skin-to-skin contact with someone who has an MRSA infection or has the bacteria living on their skin.

The bacteria can also be spread through contact with contaminated objects such as towels, sheets, clothes, dressings, surfaces, door handles and floors.

People staying in hospital are most at risk of becoming infected with MRSA because:

■ They're surrounded by a large number of people, meaning the bacteria can spread more easily

■ They often have an entry point for the bacteria to get into their body, such as a surgical wound

■ They may have serious or complex health problems, which makes them more vulnerable to infection

TEAMING UP: Abbotswold school's netball team were visited by England player Jo Harten

England netballer offers pointers

AN England international netballer has put pupils at a Harlow primary school through their paces.

Jo Harten, the current England goal shooter, visited Abbotswold Primary Academy, in Partridge Road, to teach the Year 6 students key netball skills.

Afterwards Jo signed autographs for the pupils as well as showing them the bronze medal she won in the 2015 World Championships in Sydney, Australia.

Pleasure

Mr Bailey, PE teacher for NET Academies, the body which runs Abbotswold, said: "It was a pleasure to welcome Jo and it was a great experience for the children.

"She gave the children an insight into what it takes to be a player at the top of their sport. We must say a big thank you for her time."

Jake, a student, said: "My favourite part was when we were shooting and had a competition. I learnt how to shoot accurately."

Pupils run miles to secure trophy

Healthy Schools honour for Longwood

STUDENTS at a primary school in Harlow ran a combined 30,000 miles in 2016 to earn a Healthy Schools trophy.

Many children at Longwood Primary Academy, Paringdon Road, Harlow, ran one mile a day and received a book for their success.

James Hollinsley, head teacher, said: "We started running a mile a day to tackle obesity and to encourage children to have healthier lifestyles.

"We have seen a real difference in the children's learning and concentration levels."

Hannah Ewers, assistant head teacher, said: "It is so important for our children to be fit and healthy. Many children in Key Stage 2 can run a mile without stopping, which is impressive."

Healthy Schools is an awards programme that encourages teachers to lead health and fitness-conscious activities inside and outside of the classroom.

MP grilled during Parliament tour

PUPILS at a Harlow primary school were treated to a tour of the Houses of Parliament from town MP Robert Halfon.

Students from The Henry Moore Primary School, Kiln Lane, learnt about politics and democracy during the visit. Mr Halfon regularly shows residents around the House of Commons, where he represents Harlow.

He said: "It was a pleasure to meet such bright and inquisitive students. I was very happy to answer all of their tough questions.

"Lots of them wanted to be MPs when they grow up, so we can be assured that Harlow will be in safe hands for years to come."

Formula for rewarding career is revealed

STUDENTS at a Harlow secondary school enjoyed taking part in their Engineering Development Trust (EDT) activity day.

Pupils from various year groups at St Mark's West Essex Catholic School, Tripton Road, Harlow, took part in a STEM (science, technology, engineering and mathematics) topic day that was sponsored by EDT.

The event was designed to show the students that studying STEM subjects can result in a rewarding career.

It also helped to raise awareness of engineering, especially with girls. After building wind turbines and a buggy, the children had to work out the voltage needed for the machine.

The day helped the students develop skills such as teamwork, creativity, problem-solving and time management.

Hannah Hopkins, a Year 7 pupil, said: "It was a very good experience. I now have a much better understanding about engineering. At first I thought I wouldn't be able to do the challenges but working as a team, and supporting each other, helped me to achieve them."

■ DISABILITY

Who leads on dropped kerbs

I WOULD like to ask publicly just who is in charge of dealing with people who either park on or over curbs dropped for disabled wheel chair users for them to cross the road with relevant safety?

Harlow Council say due to cuts the police need to deal with the obstruction and yet the police say it's the councils responsibility due to police cuts!

To many times I have seen selfish people ignoring the dropped kerbs in Millwards and Malloes Green and all too often a neighbour severely disabled in a wheel chair contacts me to ask for assistance as he is afraid of having to use the road to get to where he needs to go because of the speeding drivers or phone users in our small off road.

Can someone in the council or police service have the integrity to answer the question.

■ FOOTPATHS

Why is path in disrepair?

IN OCTOBER 2014 I raised with Harlow Council the poor state of this footpath and as it is the responsibility of Essex County Council they sent it to County, and I have since raised the matter with the 3 CEOs all of whom have written back to say that the condition does not come into the category set by them for urgent repair.

I have asked if they would meet with me, but they have replied they do not do this.

The condition of this County path, particularly in one area, is partly due to the mower being driven across the paving slabs and smashing them into a dangerous state.

I have sent photos of some of the most dangerous areas, all to no avail.

Perhaps you can use your good offices to look at the footpath, take photos, and if you think that the footpath does need urgent attention, take it up with County Hall.

■ M11 JUNCTION

7a and housing will not mix

NOW that Harlow North is a virtual certainty the proposed new junction 7a makes less sense than ever.

This in more ways than one is not a joined up plan: it is a folly.

The town and its roads, with very limited capacity, sits in the middle of Harlow North, the new Science Park, the new public health laboratories and the M11, all of which sit around the perimeter of the town, each to be reached by traffic crisscrossing the town: this is a recipe for permanent congestion.

Injecting more traffic into the middle of a part of the town that already gridlocks cannot work.

A perimeter ring road consisting of a Northern bypass with a new junction and a linked Southern by pass from the existing junction 7 would be a long term answer.

At least might you prevail on the Department of Transport to conduct a feasibility study.

■ ELDERLY CARE

Thanks for all the support

IN these days of negative press about care of the elderly I am writing to express my heartfelt gratitude to the staff at Ashlyn

Care Home.

In the three and a half years that my father was a resident he received the most amazing love, care, dignity and respect.

In all the time I spent at Ashlyn I have always observed the residents to be treated with that same love and care. I will always be grateful that my father chose Ashlyn for his home.

■ THE SQUARE

Where can the venue move to

I AM SURE that I read that there is a legal Act, that if a Council remove a cultural venue from a town, that they have to replace it, because it leaves a void in the community.

Could somebody please inform me, where the new venue for live music will be in the town please?

The Square put on excellent live band nights & club nights & bring in talent from all over the country. One night in 2012, a band from L.A played there. Harlow is on the map due to the Square. What is Harlow going to be without it? A boring town with a few pubs & a bad reputation, nobody is going to want to come here. We haven't even got a night club since Seen closed down.

I would also like to ask, where did the decision, regarding the closure of the Square being taken to the High Court go? This was in a spread in this very newspaper a few months ago & there has been no mention of this being taken to the High Court since. I also thought that Councillor Jon Clempner was fighting the case. I would also like to challenge Circle Housing while I am here. What "works" do they propose to do on the land? What makes them so important, that they feel they can get rid of somewhere that is loved by many?

Can someone enlighten me on all this please, before The Square turns into a void of bulldozed memories, a place that once brought happiness to people's ears, where we danced into the wee hours, and where many famous people graced the stage. Where else does this happen in a small town? Maybe whatever gets built over it, will hear what once went on there. The music echoing though eternity, as the tenants look out of their flat windows, onto one of Harlow's greatest roundabouts and a worn down, grey car park.

Clare Harrison

Independent school ranks top for GCSE performance

Government's revised system compares results across eight subjects

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

ST NICHOLAS School was named the best performing in Harlow for GCSE results in a new league table.

The independent school in Hobbs Cross Road, Harlow, finished ahead of Burnt Mill Academy in a revised ranking system known as Attainment 8.

This system compares an average percentage score for students across eight subjects. St Nicholas scored 57 which also placed them 18th in Essex and 614th nationwide.

David Bown, headteacher, said: "We are delighted. The children have been working really hard and supported by staff who want the best for them."

"We are a mixed ability school and we are not selective. There is a real sense of aspiration, there is a great work ethic and they really put a lot into it."

Mr Bown, who took the role in September, said: "The results come prior to my arrival. My task now is to back up that success."

The school also recorded 78 per cent of students passing mathematics and English with an A*-C grade, which was the former benchmark. Under this criteria Burnt Mill Academy in First Avenue, Harlow, recorded an 83 per cent pass rate which placed the school top for the former ranking system.

The full results for Harlow are as follows: St Nicholas School (Attainment 8: 57 and for the former benchmark 78), Burnt Mill Academy (52.4 and 83), St Mark's School (51.4 and 61), Passmores Academy (48.5 and 63), Stewards Academy (46.8 and 56) and Mark Hall Academy (45.7 and 51).

Goals

Stewards Academy deputy headteacher Helen Ginger said: "We now have a firm foundation for future success as our staff and pupils continue to work hard to achieve their goals."

Harlow College was the highest ranking institution for A-Levels in Harlow, finishing ahead of St Mark's School and Sir Charles Kao UTC in a reformed ranking system.

This ranks schools based on pupil development by comparing students to those with similar results at the end of Year 11. A college with a higher score is therefore performing better.

Harlow College achieved 0.23,

DELIGHTED: David Bown, headteacher of Saint Nicholas School, with pupils

Sir Charles Kao UTC recorded 0.19 and St Mark's attained -0.37.

For GCSE performance Essex is ranked 61st of all 151 local authorities nationally, which is an improvement from 74th last year. Councillor Ray Gooding, Essex County Council's cabinet member for education and lifelong learning, said: "I am very pleased that the hard work of teachers and pupils is also reflected in the revised GCSE results and secondary school performance tables."

Estate plan opposition from rural campaign

A PROPOSAL to build at least 10,000 houses in the newly proposed Harlow and Gilston Garden Town has been opposed by a pressure group.

Campaign to Protect Rural England (CPRE) has released a statement in opposition to Places For People, the housing association behind the plans.

The government has supported the building of three garden towns and 14 garden villages nationwide in a bid to meet a shortage of housing.

The proposed Gilston Park Estate, known colloquially as Harlow North, could be signed off early next year if it is passed by planning bodies and a planning inspector.

CPRE members are opposed because of the potential loss of green belt land to what they described as urban sprawl.

Kevin Fitzgerald, honorary director of CPRE Hertfordshire, said: "If it succeeds, this plan heralds the death knell of the rural character of a swathe of Hertfordshire. Beautiful villages, supposedly protected by a green belt, look set to be swallowed up by the urban sprawl of a neighbouring town."

Steve Baker, CPRE Hertfordshire planning manager, added that the proposal was far from a done deal and there are several more stages. "The proposal should be considered in this context," he said.

Trailblazers funding will aid Harlow's homeless

Uncertainty of universal credit and rising rent affect vulnerable

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE Government has pledged to tackle Harlow's homelessness problem by funding a project worker for the town.

An £891,300 investment will see six workers, known as trailblazers, employed across Essex to help at-risk individuals deal with issues and prevent them from becoming homeless.

Last month the Star reported a charity's homeless referrals had risen by 133 per cent in the past five years and this announcement, part of the Homelessness Prevention Trailblazers scheme, has been welcomed.

Kerrie Eastman, chief executive of homelessness charity Harlow Streets2Homes, said: "This is much needed."

"It is so needed with the uncertainty of universal credit and rising rents, there are vulnerable people who may not be coping."

She explained: "The project worker will go round to people who are at risk and try to prevent them from becoming homeless."

"Any sort of help for people who are vulnerable is a huge bonus. If it helps one family it is worth it. "Homelessness is heartbreaking. It will be needed if a young person is facing being kicked out by his mum. In that scenario the worker will go round and work things out.

"We will not be getting any money from this, this is a trailblazer scheme, but it would be amazing if lessons could be learnt through this."

"Any money coming into preventing homelessness is brilliant."

Prevention

Harlow is one of many towns nationwide to benefit from the £50 million Homelessness Prevention Programme announced by communities secretary Sajid Javid.

Robert Halfon, MP for Harlow, said: "I hope that this new Government funding will reduce homelessness in Harlow and build on the brilliant work already being done."

"Streets2Homes is another fantastic charity in Harlow that runs a day centre all year round for homeless people."

"Over Christmas I was very pleased to go to the opening of the Harlow Chocolate Run homeless shelter and meet some of the amazing volunteers working there."

WORD ON THE STREETS: Harlow Streets2Homes client Gary Cooper with volunteer Jeanette Godfrey and manager Kerrie Eastman

IN BRIEF

Kids' driver on drink charge

HARLOW: A motorist who had three children in her vehicle has been charged with drink-driving. Rebecca Royer-Cummings, of Tendring Mews, was arrested just after 11pm on Friday, January 13.

This was after a member of the public reported that a woman who appeared to be intoxicated was driving a car in Church Langley Way, Harlow.

Ms Royer-Cummings has been bailed to appear at Chelmsford Magistrates' Court on Tuesday, February 14.

Sergeant Greg Jurkiewicz, of Essex Police, tweeted after the incident: "Female arrested and charged for drink-driving in Harlow. Three children (were in the) vehicle. Totally irresponsible."

Munchies goes

HARLOW: Munchies Cakes has ceased trading in the Harvey Centre.

Owners JWM Cakes announced the news on its Facebook page and staff said they would contact customers about outstanding orders.

A statement read: "It is with great sadness that we must announce that, as of January 1, JWM Cakes Ltd has ceased trading (in Harlow), leading to the closure of our retail outlet."

It is understood its Ilford shop is still trading.

All cake orders that have been made already will be unaffected.

Racist sworn at by a judge 'had it coming' says victim

Woman abused by man is pleased QC will not be struck off

GAVE AS GOOD AS SHE GOT: Judge Patricia Lynch QC was cleared of misconduct after swearing back at a Harlow racist

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RACIST John Hennigan, who was sworn at in court by Judge Patricia Lynch QC, 'had it coming', according to a victim of his abuse.

Hennigan, 50, of Brockles Mead, Harlow, was sentenced to 18 months in prison for breaching his ASBO by using racist language towards Tanisha Ford and her two young children last year.

In an infamous exchange at Chelmsford Crown Court in August, the defendant began a tirade towards Judge Lynch and called her 'a bit of a c***'.

Replied

Astonishingly the judge replied 'you are a bit of a c*** yourself', to which Hennigan yelled back 'go f*** yourself', and Judge Lynch responded 'you too'.

Earlier this month the judge was cleared of misconduct.

The court heard Ms Ford, who is of Caribbean descent, was with her kids aged eight and six, who are also black, in Market Square, Harlow, when she encountered Hennigan.

The conversation was initially normal but as the three walked off Hennigan said: "I do not agree with inter-racial relationships, I like things natural.

"I prefer white children."

The exchange shocked Ms Ford who called the police.

Hennigan's ASBO breach was his ninth in 11 years and he also performed a Nazi salute at the dock, shouting 'Seig Heil'.

Comment

Reacting to the judge's comments Ms Ford, 27, said: "I'm really happy for her, she just got caught up in the moment."

"We're all human and he does wind people up."

"He's got a foul mouth and he had it coming."

The mother, who is currently studying beauty, added that she thought Hennigan was not just a bit of a c*** but a complete and utter one.

She said: "I think he needed to hear it as he's obviously been going round to people thinking he can laud his personality on them."

"It must have been a shock for him to hear that from the judge, but good on her."

She added: "I'm shocked it was taken into investigation. I'm overwhelmed she's not going to be struck off."

"It's come to a good ending."

Police arrest five for immigration offences after pulling car over

FIVE suspected illegal immigrants were arrested on the M11 near Harlow when police pulled a car over.

The group told Essex Police officers they were from Sudan and Egypt, and were all arrested for suspected immigration offences.

One, who claims to be a minor, has been passed into the care of social services for him to be age-assessed.

Immigration Enforcement was contacted by Essex Police around 5.30pm on Monday after officers attended the incident southbound between junctions eight and seven on the M11.

IN BRIEF

Man who stole booze is fined

HARLOW: A man who stole a bottle of Irish liqueur worth £6.99 from Lidl in Staple Tye, Harlow, has been fined.

Deema Decker, 21, of Hadrians Rise, Enfield, pleaded guilty before Chelmsford Magistrates' Court and was given a £50 fine.

He will also pay a victim surcharge of £30 and court costs of £85.

Stab charge

HARLOW: A 16-year-old boy from Harlow has been charged in connection with the stabbing of an 18-year-old man in Grays.

The victim was assaulted on Wednesday, November 16 after refusing to hand over his bike in the High Street.

A second boy, aged 17, from Dagenham was also charged.

Neither boy can be named due to their age and are due before court at a later date.

Ain't that grand

HARLOW: A Stansted resident won £1,000 in this week's St Clare Hospice lottery draw with the number 31065.

A Harlow player won £75 with the number 24578 in the weekly draw while the jackpot was not won and will rollover again.

Based in Hastingwood, St Clare is a charity which cares for local people and their families who are affected by life limiting illnesses such as cancer and motor neurone disease.

Father of man found dead in TV star's pool is still seeking answers

'My son was a lovely man and that was his downfall'

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsessexnews.co.uk

IT HAS been a long wait for answers for Terry Lubbock but that could all be about to come to an end.

In 2001, Terry had to identify the body of his son Stuart.

The 31-year-old was found dead after a party at the Roydon home of television personality Michael Barrymore.

Sixteen years on, the case remains unsolved and the truth surrounding his death is still a mystery.

But Terry, who is now 72 and lives in a care home in Harlow, thinks this could be the year the lid blows off the case as he, along with representative Tony Bennett, prepare to launch a bid to reopen the inquest into Stuart's death.

"This is going to be a make or break," said Terry.

"This year's going to be big for me. After 16 years there's going to be a lot that happens this year.

"I'm not really a man that dwells on anything, but as you get older you either forget about certain things or the reverse happens.

Shock

"They get larger and larger in your head and that really is what has happened with Stuart and this now is going to be my biggest shock, but if all else fails it won't affect me because I'll still be there for Stuart.

"I'm not doing it for me, I'm doing it for Stuart."

Following a night of partying at a Harlow nightclub, Stuart, a father of two, accompanied television presenter Barrymore to his mansion.

After partaking in drugs and alcohol, Stuart was found floating in Barrymore's swimming pool on March 31, 2001.

In September 2002 following a five-day inquest at Chelmsford, coroner Caroline Beasley-Murray recorded an open verdict, saying she had been unable to say for definite what caused his death.

Three out of the four pathologists who gave evidence at the inquest could not say that he had definitely drowned in the pool.

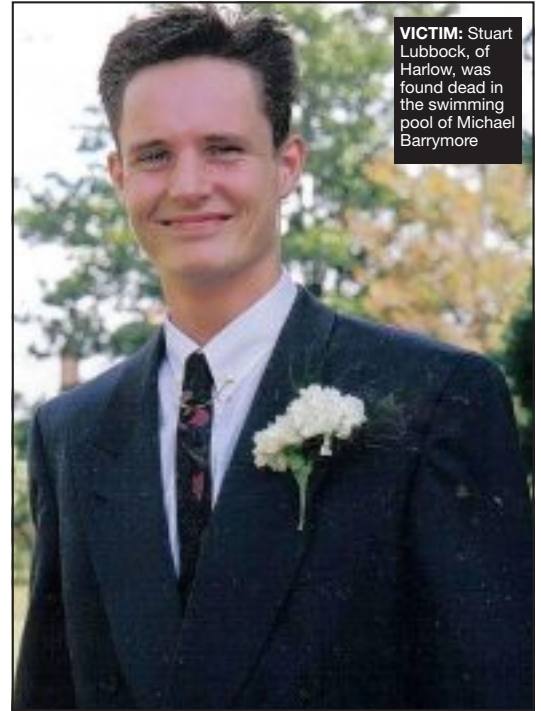

There was, however, evidence he had been sexually assaulted.

Terry hopes a second inquest could give him some closure and, possibly even lead to a criminal investigation.

Under Section 13 of the Coroners Act 1988 a new inquest can be held if new evidence comes to light.

Mr Bennett said new information that has emerged since the inquest includes a finding by the

LEGAL ACTION: Michael Barrymore is seeking damages

the light-entertainment star is now seeking £2.5million for wrongful arrest and imprisonment.

Terry remains convinced there are people who know more about the incident than has been previously made public.

He has dedicated his life to this case. It's cost him his health – he has had four strokes – and his relationship with estranged family members, but his memories of Stuart make it worth it.

Loved

"He loved cars," he said. "I think he got through about two or three cars in his lifetime.

"He was the business, when he was behind the wheel, Stuart was the business. He was the man. He just loved driving.

"He was a lovely man and I think that was his downfall. He took people at face value.

"When I identified him he looked so lovely, he really did look nice. He didn't look as though he had passed away, he looked as though he was asleep.

"I was grateful that his face looked that way, there were no marks. He had a fantastic complexion.

"I want to remember him like that."

Garden town 'inevitable' says estate agency boss

Plan for 10,000-home development opposed by local campaigners

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

THE director of an estate agency has said the proposed building of a garden town to Harlow's north will go ahead.

Housing association Places For People has now received local and central government backing for its Gilston Park Estate plan which could consist of more than 10,000 homes.

Despite vocal opposition from pressure group Stop Harlow North, the proposals could be passed in the next 18 months as part of the local plans for Epping, East Herts and Harlow councils.

Daniel Galati, land and homes director at Essex and Hertfordshire firm Mullucks Wells, said: "As a resident I have the same concerns as everyone else.

"But we have to accept the announcement means it is inevitable. Whilst this will bring its own challenges we also have to recognise there are accompanying benefits."

The Gilston development, which contains seven distinct villages separated by green space, was one of three garden town's to receive government support in a recent announcement.

Encroaches

Spike Hughes, leader of Stop Harlow North, said the group opposes the development because it encroaches on green belt land and cannot be supported by needed infrastructure – such as transport and health services.

Mary Parsons, director of Places For People, previously stated that infrastructure will be ready and that the houses are much needed to meet a shortage of homes. The plans also include funding to renovate Harlow town centre.

ARTIST'S IMPRESSION: How Gilston Park Estate could look

Mr Galati said the estate is well designed and said additional facilities, such as new schools, shops, community and sports centres will be provided.

He added: "Density is key. Many other sites have been developed with twice that number of houses per hectare.

"This means there will be plenty of incidental and strategic open space, helping to preserve and protect the countryside nearby.

"The fact it has been divided into seven individual villages is also promising.

"I think they have learnt from other developments which have ended up looking like an unconstrained urban sprawl."

IN BRIEF

Walkies held in aid of charity

HARLOW: A girl has organised a sponsored dog walk as part of her school's "tenner challenge".

Amber Growden, 11, who attends Mark Hall Academy, is raising money for Protecting Preloved Border Collies.

Walkers can join the five-mile stroll for free on Sunday, March 19 with donations encouraged. The group will gather at Parndon Mill, off Elizabeth Way, Harlow, from 9.45am for a 10am start. Sign up at jenna.growden@hotmail.co.uk

Inn on market

HARLOW: Park Inn By Radisson in Southern Way is being sold by specialist property advisor Christie & Co.

The hotel is one of six Park Inn branded properties being sold nationally and Christie Co is seeking offers in the region of £50 million to buy the lot.

Park Inn contains 119 rooms, an indoor swimming pool, gym and reception suite.

Care session

HARLOW: The town's Alzheimer's Society branch is holding an information session with Essex Police on Monday.

Officers will attend the group's Memory Café at Moot House, in The Stow, from 10.30am. Anyone with dementia, or their carer, can attend the free weekly session from 10am.

WHEN AN INSPECTOR CALLS

A look at exactly what happens when Ofsted pay schools a visit, what their reports mean and what action is taken afterwards

MOST people have heard of Ofsted, and most people are aware when there's an Ofsted inspection going on at their child's school – but unless the school gets a different judgment and classification, that's about all they know about the services and processes they have.

School governor Maria Condiri found out more about what Ofsted is, what the inspectors do, and what it all means to you, your children and their school.

Ofsted is 'The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills'. It's a non-ministerial body that inspects and regulates services for children, young people, and education for all ages. Venues that they inspect include all maintained schools, academies, city technology colleges and colleges for technology of the arts, special schools (including some non-maintained) and pupil referral units. They also inspect some independent schools, and other educational bodies – as well as early years and children's social care services, childcare, adoption and fostering agencies and teacher training courses.

Ofsted aims to achieve excellence in education and skills for all students and carers. Throughout England, Ofsted carries out hundreds of inspections and regulatory visits per week. There are approximately 1,500 employees across the English regions, and more than 1,500 Her Majesty's Inspectors and Ofsted Inspectors who actually carry out the visits. All inspectors are trained and qualified to set Ofsted standards. The results are published online. Looking to help schools that are not of a 'good' standard to improve, they keep up with progress and share best practice. An independent and unbiased body, Ofsted reports directly to policy makers in parliament. Reports are published to use as reference for upgrading education.

Inspections are a legal requirement. Inspections are designed to look at the quality and standards of education and achievement in the schools, to give information to parents and carers, and to encourage schools to improve – and to check they are accountable for their public funding.

The judgements are made on effectiveness of leadership and management, quality of teaching, learning and assessment, personal development, behaviour and welfare. If it's appropriate, inspectors make a graded judgement on the early years or sixth form provision in the school. Grades go from 1 to 4: 1 (outstanding), 2 (good), 3 (requires improvement), 4 (inadequate). It is the school's responsibility to ensure all parents of their pupils get a copy of the inspector's report.

Timings

Timings and times vary: inspections usually last two days and the size of the inspection team varies depending on the size of the school. All schools are inspected bar those who were judged as outstanding at their last inspection – unless they are nurseries, special schools or pupil referral units. These exempt schools do get an annual performance audit after the third year after their last inspection, to check if another inspection should be done, and they are still inspected through Ofsted's curriculum surveys.

A school judged to be good at its last inspection normally receives a short inspection – that is, a short one-day inspection approximately every three years, just to check standards are still high. The school afterwards tells the parents when the report is released. If standards have improved enough, for the school to be deemed outstanding, a standard two-day inspection will be done instead of the short version, usually within 48 hours. If there are concerns or they need extra scope to ascertain the judgement of good still stands, a two-day inspection will also be done.

Primary schools with rolls under 600 are inspected by Her Majesty's Inspectors (HMI). All secondary schools and large primary schools (600 pupils plus), are inspected by an HMI and a team inspector.

Technically, Ofsted can inspect a school on spec if they think it's appropriate – but most schools are told they will be inspected on the afternoon of the working day before the inspection commences.

At an inspection, the inspectors check the school's self-evaluation and pupils' progress and attainment. They interview the headteacher, governors, staff, and pupils, and study the parents' feedback. Most of the inspection involves inspectors sitting in on lessons to see the quality of teaching and how it affects learning and progress. They also consider the personal development, behaviour and welfare of pupils, the promotion of spiritual, moral, social and cultural development; and leadership and management.

Monitoring

Schools judged as 'requires improvement' at the last inspection are monitored for progress and inspected within around two years. If it is still deemed to require improvement, it is monitored and inspected again after another two years – then if no progress is made, it may be judged as inadequate and recommended for special measures.

If Ofsted judges a school to be inadequate, it is either placed in special measures – which means it isn't supplying an acceptable standard of education, or showing the capacity to improve – or in serious weaknesses – which means one or more of the key performance areas need significant improvement, but the school's leaders and managers have shown it can be ameliorated.

Maintained schools in this situation are issued with an academy order by the Secretary of State for Education, to become a sponsored academy. Academies judged as inadequate are visited until they can be removed from the category of concern, unless a new sponsor creates it as a new sponsored academy. Ofsted re-inspects academies judged as having serious weaknesses within 18 months of its last standard inspection, and re-inspects academies put into special measures within two years of its last standard two-day inspection.

Before the inspection, the school will send all parents of pupils a letter with the inspection dates, contact details for inspectors, and a chance to air their views. Opinions can also be logged on Ofsted online survey area Parent View, which inspectors will use in their evaluation. Otherwise, parents may be able to meet the inspectors during the inspection – and administrators can also arrange messages and phone calls to be passed on.

After the inspection, the lead inspector reports back to the headteacher and governors, and the findings are published on the Ofsted website for the school, parents and community.

EDUCATION

Sick days are an inevitable part of school life but prolonged absences can have serious and long-lasting consequences on a child's education

SICK days from school seem to be an occupational hazard of being a kid – especially at this time of year when the weather is less than forgiving.

However, making a habit of staying out of the classroom for whatever reason can have damaging consequences. School attendance officers and education authorities are keen to monitor patterns of presence and absence, and to investigate any problems.

We take a look at how the rules and regulations related to school attendance stand, the support parents can obtain, and the warnings, offers of help, and consequences that can follow for persistent absentees and their parents or carers.

What's the law, in a nutshell?

Quite simply, it's up to you, legally, as a parent or carer, to see that your children gets a full-time education that is appropriate for their needs (this includes if they have special educational needs).

If they aren't there for lessons, the less of the curriculum they will learn and harder the impact upon their exam grades will be.

And this education has to take place between the school term after their fifth birthday and the last Friday in June in the school year in which they turn 16.

What about home schoolers?

Yes, the law includes home schooling too. If you want to educate your child at home you must write to their headteacher to arrange this and make sure your child receives a full-time education outside a conventional classroom.

Your local council will be on hand to advise and monitor, and offer extra help with SEN, and their educational welfare officers are entitled to make checks on your pupil's progress.

If they don't think the education you are offering is appropriate, they can serve a school attendance order and order them back to school.

Well, we aren't home schooling – so what about absence from a regular school?

Schools generally only allow absence from school in certain circumstances, namely, illness, medical or other circumstances vetted and approved by the school, being overtaken by events such as bad weather, and religious festivals and observances, whenever they apply.

Schools can sanction an authorised absence – where approval has been given in advance or an explanation has been tendered afterwards.

You should contact the school as soon as you can to explain the situation, ask permission for the absence and get it agreed.

For example, if you're required as a family to attend a grandparent's funeral in another part of the country, you must contact the school as soon as you know the date of the ceremony, and any travel time that will be involved.

If they don't authorise, the school is indicating that a reason wasn't provided, or the reason provided wasn't acceptable.

There's a bug going round...

Illness is no respecter of school hours and teachers know that. So, ringing in on the dedicated absence line is always your first line of action. This needs to be followed up when the child returns with a note to whoever you are advised to write to (form tutor, pastoral care, head of year etc).

I've seen people in the newspapers being sent to prison for their kids not going to school.

Technically, if your children are registered at a school and they don't attend regularly, you as the parent, or carer, are guilty of an offence. And this, as the news quite rightly reports, can result in a prosecution. However they won't march you off right away – there are various ways in which schools and authorities can help you through the absence problem.

That sounds positive, what can they do?

It's all a case of communication. If your child is having medical problems, your doctor or hospital consultant can help to create a situation where the child is sent lessons to do at home and monitoring until they're passed fit to be back at their desks.

Otherwise, the school and local council will help. The school will arrange a meeting to discuss the attendance problems and they should raise and agree a plan with you to deal with them. And many local councils have staff who are dedicated to giving parents the back-up to remedy persistent absence.

For example, working to overcome bullying problems, support for young carers who have missed school as they are looking after someone at home, or a parenting contract. You'd have to approach the local education authority for details related to your area.

What's a parenting contract?

It's a voluntary written agreement, made between you and the local council or the school's governing body to agree a strategy to improve your child's attendance.

If you refuse a parenting contract (or make one and ignore it), the local council can use this as evidence if it decides to prosecute.

What if the situation doesn't improve? Is that when you get prosecuted?

You're not up in front of the judge just yet. There are several more powers that councils and governing bodies have up their sleeves for persistent absentees.

The council doesn't have to try these before prosecution, but many do, and they can issue one or more of them at any one time. First, a Parenting Order – where the court will require you to attend parenting classes and set out directives to follow to improve the absence problem.

An Education Supervision Order will appoint a supervisor to help you get your child back to school. A School Attendance Order, issued if the local council thinks your child isn't getting an education, gives you 15 days to prove your child is registered with a school or being home-educated.

The order will state the school your child should attend – if you don't comply you could be prosecuted or fined. Fines of £60, (£120 if you don't pay within 21 days) can also be issued by the local council. Non-payment after 28 days may result in prosecution.

What if it all ends up in court?

Prosecution could land you with a fine of up to £2,500, a community order or a jail term up to three months – and a Parenting Order on top of that.

EDUCATION

THE IMPORTANCE OF TELLING TALES

NOT many of us can recall how we first learned our first language – but it's a sure bet that hearing and telling stories played a big part in our acquisition of our mother tongue.

It's an aspect of language-learning that the pioneers behind the educational app GrowStoryGrow have taken as an inspiration, with some astonishing effects. We met the managing director, Valerie Thorner, to find out more about how they get modern technology and storytelling skills that are as old as mankind to work together to teach languages to pupils.

In its present form of a website and app, GrowStoryGrow has been going, and growing, since 2010. It was inspired by its precursor, which was a package of CDs launched in 2003 with children's stories, called Little Tales of the Unexpected, and associated games and activities, that worked in the same way of encouraging children to build stories to help practise and gain confidence as their proficiency in a language flourished.

"Now kids can go online, and access their own online library of stories," says Valerie. "At the time we first started out, there had been a large initiative in terms of learning languages in primary schools in England. The CD package acted as an introduction to languages – in fact it is actually still used in some schools! – and as interactive technology moved on, we progressed too."

The GrowStoryGrow's system rationale is unique and very simple – it is based on stories that grow as the children use the website or app. Users usually begin with one or two words in the foreign language, with visuals to accompany them – and then they begin, with the help of their teachers, to add more layers – with more words and more sophisticated grammar. "The stories are mostly ones that are well known," adds Valerie. "Children just can keep going back to the stories and making them more elaborate, and see their progress after they have been embellishing a story after a term, one year, two years – whatever!"

With the system, children can play interactive games involving words and pictures to help them learn the vocabulary and grammar. "Activities such as matching words and pictures, or noughts and crosses or unscrambling words all help familiarise the children with languages – and again, it starts easy and gets more challenging later," says Valerie.

Valerie and her team are constantly evaluating the needs of their users and researching national educational trends. "Many local authorities are buying GrowStoryGrow and it is now used a lot across the UK," says Valerie. "We have competitions for children to write stories, which we produce and put online. The stories themselves are read by professional voice artists who are native speakers of the particular languages, using a received pronunciation version of the languages without accents which may confuse children.

"Also, the stories need to be translated literally, but with the young users in mind. I have found that teachers who are translators are best at this."

As a platform for introducing and learning languages, Valerie has had feedback that GrowStoryGrow is very flexible: "Teachers use it in different ways – as source material or backup to textbooks, for storytime at the end of a lesson source or even as a springboard to artwork and drama performances. "And it's cross curricular – obviously for geography, and also for RE and history because units within the website and app involve Easter, Christmas and Remembrance Sunday," says Valerie. "Parents can also use it at home, as long as the school has a licence, the children will all be able to log in."

Making learning languages fun and relevant is very important to Valerie, a teacher of 20 years standing and linguist with a Masters in multimedia technology: "Learning a language tells you a lot about how people think in different countries, how they feel, the mindset and history of the country. If you learn the language you can get to the root of the country and what it is all about."

And, she says, it is even more important for the national economy. "A lot of time, kids go abroad and they are not motivated to use other languages because everyone they meet speaks English," she says. "But it is a disadvantage for the British to be seen as monoglots – as many of us will admit to. And I've heard that some researchers suspect that we actually lose trade because of our difficulties with languages."

Valerie advocates teaching languages as early as possible. "The energy of the younger age is positive – a lot of kids get put off by learning languages later on at primary school and by the secondary level, they're just not interested," she advises.

"And it should be fun, and sustained – sometimes half an hour a week is not enough.

"A big challenge, however, is what language should be taught – traditionally it has been French but there has been demand for Mandarin, Portuguese and Arabic – and a very interesting demand in Scotland for Gaelic. GrowStoryGrow offers seven languages, including Mandarin, Arabic and Portuguese.

"It works both ways too – the stories are available in English, so it has been used as an English as a second language resource."

HIGH-TECH TEACHERS

ASK most children what they would imagine to be a part of a school of the future, and many of them would probably say: "Robots!"

This might sound like something out of an episode of Doctor Who, but it's already happening in the classrooms that are part of Robots in Schools.

The robots concerned may not be androids writing on blackboards, but they are giving pupils important lessons in computer science, ICT and having a positive effect on the rest of the curriculum to boot. Robots in Schools co-founder and chief marketing officer John Carter talked to us about the concept, the effects it has had, and their plans for the future.

Robots in Schools has been going for 20 months – and its signature robot, the EDBOT, has been on sale for almost a year. The inspiration behind using a robot as a teaching tool came from a visit John's co-founder made to the Consumer Electronics Show in Las Vegas, where he saw robots programmable with Scratch, which is a very simple computer coding language. "And Scratch is an introductory coding language that is used in most primary schools – he thought, what if you give students of all ages the chance to actually program a robot for themselves, that would stimulate them to want to learn to code," recalls John.

The show also featured humanoid robots of all kinds: "Fascinating robots, just like little people, in all shapes and sizes," says John.

"Now, these were here to impress people – they're a star attraction for the Japanese company Softbank, which is Japan's biggest mobile phone company and the third largest company in Japan overall. They have them in their showrooms to attract customers – and they are very good at their job!"

The Robots in Schools team saw an opportunity to make as much of an impression on young people in Britain as the Softbank robots – known, incidentally, as Nao and Pepper – have on Japanese shoppers. "We realised that it would be a unique chance to capture the fascination people have with humanoid robots and turn it into a powerful teaching tool," says John.

The team scoured the market and found the most cost-effective, versatile model they could at the most reasonable price.

"We sourced a robot kit from South Korea, called the Robotis Mini," explains John.

"We build the kit, and then add our software which makes it speak the programming languages. We then brand it as an 'Edbot Robotis Mini'. 'EDBOT' is the name for our overall concept, and the Edbot concept can stretch beyond that initial product. We are evaluating other robot devices all the time, and we may extend the EDBOT range in the future.

"We began by making it respond to languages like Scratch," says John. "We added more languages, more sophisticated ones like Python, Java and C++, and the way we wrote the software ensured that the EDBOT would make it work with any coding language."

Once they had, as John put it, harnessed the humanoid, it was time to show what they could do, and moreover, what pupils could make them do. Robots in Schools provides a very extensive user documentation, including lesson plans for teachers. "The EDBOT helps kids learn how to write code," says John. "In the UK, the IT curriculum now says that pupils should learn to code from primary level, and they should learn, when writing code, how to program an external object to do something."

Most schools' IT teachers are looking for solutions to this and the EDBOT is made to work on the network the school has in place already. John explains the system: "The kids' PCs and the teacher's are linked, so that the teacher can see what the kids are doing. Our software sits on all the computers, and the robot 'talks' to the teacher's PC. We made it so that the teacher can select a particular pupil's computer and get them to put together some code to control the EDBOT. It has different moves, and each child can control it when the teacher asks them."

The EDBOT can perform a range of moves – including a flip, and playing football. "We are about to install speech capability – that will be in unveiled in 2017 at the BETT show, which is a very well-esteemed expo for tech in education," adds John. "We are finalists in the 2017 BETT Awards for ICT Innovator of the Year. The winner will be announced in January." The EDBOT is sold pre-assembled, as it's very tricky to build in primary schools. However, with more languages installed, self-assembly is more relevant to older pupils who are capable of more challenging projects.

The EDBOT is currently well-received internationally, retailing in countries including Belgium, Spain and Serbia, with more planned. It's been sold successfully to UK primary and secondary schools, both state and independent, co-educational and single-sex. And it's striking its own blow for girls in STEM too. "It is funny that girls do seem to like it," says John. "It's true that lots of robots do look a bit like Transformers which have always traditionally been aimed at boys... the EDBOT is, as they say, cute. There's a lot of controversy over girls being left behind in coding and we aim to address this."

At the end of the day, says John, the EDBOT gives pupils practical hands-on experience of coding. "From 2017 we will be in more secondary schools, where they learn the advanced language, Python, and the EDBOT can be an integral part of this."

Describing the EDBOT as a 'holistic learning' device, John also speculates on its benefits being extended to special educational needs classes. "There may be something that our robots can do to help," hopes John. "Otherwise, the EDBOT will march into 2017 with its extra languages being showcased at the BETT show, and a new option of a build-it-yourself kit with separate software to download onto it."

Harlow has creative talent

THE creative and diverse talent of Harlow is being shown off in the town's annual art competition.

Print, watercolour, etchings, photography and sculpture are all displayed inside the Gibberd Gallery for Harlow Open 17. The contest is open to people who live, work and study in the town.

Andy Lee's work I Don't Really Like Tea was named best in show at a launch event last Thursday and the exhibition will be held until Friday, March 3.

Artist Amanda Westbury said: "It's a real diverse range of art. There is something for everyone, sculpture, painting, print, installations and video.

"I think it showcases the creative talent of Harlow."

She added: "The Harlow Open happens every year, it's an opportunity for people that have connections with Harlow to submit artwork into the gallery.

ANTONIO Oyarzabal will perform at St John's Arts and Recreation Centre tomorrow.

The lunchtime recital, named Winter Lights will be held at the centre in St John's Walk, Old Harlow, and will begin at 1.30pm with soup being served at 12.45pm.

There will also be music from Schubert, Tchaikovsky, Janacek and Debussy.

Oyarzabal is a master graduate as a piano soloist at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama.

"It's called an open because it's any theme or any medium. We have judges coming in and this year there were 180 entries and the judges narrowed it down to 92. The judges choose the best in the show, second and third prize.

"It's really important for the gallery that we get external judges because it's such a close community in Harlow and it needs to be fair."

Most of the works are available to buy and range from £45 to £1,400.

In addition to the main event there is also a children's open held in the Hideaway Gallery next door: Students from Harlow schools took the opportunity to put forward their own best work.

Harlow print maker Robert Bramich, who entered several works, received a highly commended certificate for his efforts.

He said: "I won the commendation which says commended for print work. They do one commendation for sculpture, print and painting.

"It's quite comforting and reassuring to have my work appreciated in this way."

He added: "I'm a print maker so you could say that's being an artist but I originally began as a teacher at a college. I've developed my interest in print making over decades.

"I've submitted work to the Harlow Open for as long as it's been going. It was a surprise to get a commendation because it's never happened before, so I see that as a sort of progress in terms of what I'm doing."

The gallery is open Mondays to Fridays from 9am to 4.45pm. For more information visit gibberdgallery.co.uk

EMMA Abbate and Julian Perkins will be performing a piano concert on Friday, February 3 at St John's Arts and Recreation Centre.

The recital will begin at 1.30pm with soup being served from 12.45pm at the venue in St John's Walk, Old Harlow.

Talent show success gave Jamie magical opportunity

NOW YOU SEE HIM: Jamie Raven will be performing his live magic show in Letchworth

Jamie Raven is a name you may not have known two years ago, but the magician is now living the dream thanks to Britain's Got Talent...

THE man who famously made Simon Cowell exclaim, "I now actually believe in magic," on route to second place on the ITV show Britain's Got Talent in 2015, has actually been performing tricks for more than a decade.

After being catapulted to fame the 33-year-old has sold out West End theatres headlining in The Illusionists and is now focusing on the third leg of his solo show Jamie Raven Live.

His performances at Harlow Playhouse (Saturday, February 25) and Broadway in Letchworth GC (Sunday, February 26) are towards the end of an intense 17-date tour.

Jamie said: "It is a little bit lighter than the one we did in June, we are taking a few days off in the middle to go to the Blackpool Magic Convention.

"You get used to it, it is great fun. I have been working professionally for ten years and I always dreamed of doing a (solo) show.

"As a magician on stage it is what you dream of, there are so many possibilities live."

Despite pulling in more than 20 per cent of the vote in the BGT final, Jamie narrowly lost out to dog trick act Jules O'Dwyer and Matisse.

But although Jamie said he would obviously have preferred to have won, he has achieved much more than he could have imagined.

"Never in my wildest dreams did I think I would come second overall," he said.

"For Simon Cowell to say that it was amazing. The video has got more than 20million views. I did The Illusionists and I am looking forward to having a sleep in March!"

He added: "I was approached for Britain's Got Talent. If it goes well it goes really well. The downside is that if this is your professional life (and it goes wrong) it can be a back-step.

"I weighed up the pros and cons of doing it and gave it a go. The audition was just out there on a stage, which is what I do, but the semi-final and final was (on live TV) and therefore different.

"There is someone sitting on a box, deciding what camera to use."

On coming second he said: "It is a game show. I always choose to focus on the positives, I was the top two-legged act!"

Jamie is keeping the structure of his show similar to the first two legs of his tour. The man from Ascot would not be drawn into giving away what happens in the show, or the secrets behind his tricks, but he said the nature of magic means no two shows will ever be the same. Fans who have seen a previous show on the tour can expect a few surprises.

"There are always things that are changing. There will be new things.

I would say 99 per cent of the stuff that I do is audience participation. It is impossible to have the same show twice.

"I will say that I am doing my own take on the classic sawing the lady in half, although it is done with a man and there is a difference..." He doesn't say any more.

After a whirlwind couple of years Jamie is loving his new life and said that adjusting has not been a struggle. "It all just happens," he said. "It is not like I say yes please or no thanks, I knew this (success) would happen if it all worked out. I was not going in blind.

"But I can never get over sitting in Costa and having people walk over to me, asking for an autograph, it is something I will never get used to."

He added: "I have been to Harlow before but I have not been inside the [Playhouse] theatre. I am really looking forward to it."

Jamie Raven will perform Jamie Raven Live at Harlow Playhouse, Playhouse Square, Harlow, on Saturday, February 25. Tickets cost £17 to 21 and are on sale now. For bookings and more information call 01279 431945 or visit: harlowplayhouse.co.uk

He will also perform at Broadway, Eastcheap, in Letchworth GC on Sunday, February 26. Tickets cost £20 and are on sale now. Call 01462 681088 or visit: broadway-leitchworth.com

Happy ending for friends in their horror movie venture

THE passion and effort of two friends has paid off with their horror film being released on DVD.

Simon Cummins, 34, of Waltham Abbey and Lawrence Marsh, 41, from Harlow, are now delighted to see their creation A Room to Die For selling well in local shops.

Both men co-produced the film and had been trying to get it off the ground for a while.

Originally Simon got involved with the darkly-scripted film and sent a draft to Lawrence who came on board.

The plot follows a cashless young couple who rent a room in the London house of an elderly pair but things turn darker as it becomes clear nobody they encounter is who they seem.

Together, Essex pair Simon and Lawrence received interest from independent distributors 4 Digital and took their idea to Cannes where they got a deal with Sony Pictures.

The film was released to DVD on Monday, January 16 and sold 1,500 copies on its first day. The impressive reaction has led to a full US release on Tuesday, April 4.

Lawrence said: "It's sold well but we haven't seen much reaction as the first week has been a bit crazy."

"We've been promoting it to friends on Facebook and Twitter and getting as many people to hear about it as we can."

"It's in a lot more shops than we ever thought it would be."

Wordsquare

Give yourself ten minutes to find as many words as possible using the letters in the grid. Each word must use the central letter and at least 3 others, and letters may be used only once. You cannot use plurals, foreign words or proper nouns, but verb forms ending in 's' are permitted. There is one 9-letter word to be found.

How you rate:

10 words - average; 15 words - good; 20 words - very good; 25 or more - excellent.

PROPERTY TALK

&gt;with NIGEL LEWIS

Where a superchef cooked up success

PETER Langan was a hard drinking celebrity restaurateur and chef with famous friends in high places and a reputation for insulting many of his diners.

This might not sound like the recipe for what was one of the UK's most successful restaurants – Langan's Brasserie in London's Mayfair – but despite his lack of charm, the rich and famous queued to dine at his restaurant.

Actor Michael Caine was a partner in the business which opened in 1976 and, at its zenith during the late 1970s and 1980s, was the place to be seen. Each day up to 700 diners a day would pass through its doors.

Famous patrons at the time included Mohammed Ali,

Elizabeth Taylor, Mick Jagger, Princess Margaret, Ronnie Corbett, Orson Welles, Billy Connolly and Janet Street Porter. The restaurant was also a favourite haunt of artists including David Hockney and Francis Bacon.

Langan's Brasserie continues today even though its founder died in 1988 aged just 42 after suffering smoke inhalation during a fire at his home in Coggeshall, Essex.

His former office on Maddox Street, which is a five-minute walk from the restaurant, has been converted into flats by Amazon Property and a four-bedroom, two-floor penthouse remains for sale, at £5.25 million.

The property has a ten-seat dining room, huge open-plan kitchen and breakfast room, stone as well as oak floors throughout and groans with marble and chrome finishes. The property comes with a 999-year lease. More information from Knight Frank (020 3811 2378).

Robbie pub where everything's changed

SINGER Robbie Williams recently told The Sun that his days of alcohol and drug addiction were behind him as the 42-year-old father of two celebrated the release of his 11th solo album.

But, as any dedicated Robbie fan will tell you, drinking has been in his family for many years.

His parents Peter and Janet ran The Red Lion pub in his home town of Stoke-on-Trent during the 1970s when Robbie was a small child, before moving on later to run the bar at Port Vale FC Social Club, a team that Robbie has supported ever since.

But his fans were appalled to discover recently that The Red Lion, which is in Stoke-on-Trent's central district of Burslem, is now up for sale at £150,000 and is likely to be redeveloped into flats.

Several 'superfans' have started a campaign to save the pub as a shrine to the Angels singer, and Robbie's dad recently viewed the premises, not to buy it but because he wanted to have a look around.

He told local paper The Sentinel that "it was quite strange being back inside, I even had a look upstairs – I had not been up there since 1977," he said. "It would be nice if the pub was restored because, if it is turned into flats, it will be a little around."

The pub is for sale with agent Keates Hulme (01782 955074) and comes with two bars as well as a two-bedroom apartment for the landlord.

Rapper puts his career on ice, ice, baby

WHAT does a ground-breaking rapper from the 1990s do when the hits fade and edgy haircuts have turned to grey?

One answer is to begin designing and building houses, if you're Robert Matthew Van Winkle, better known to rap fans as Vanilla Ice.

His biggest hit was 1989's Ice, Ice, Baby, a rap record based loosely on the bassline from David Bowie and Queen's hit Under Pressure. It was the first hip hop single to top the Billboard Hot 100 in the US, and reached No.1 in the charts in the UK too.

His career as a rapper flagged somewhat after he began to be considered a novelty act, although he's been taken more seriously recently since relaunching his career.

He also works as a TV presenter and a movie actor.

Slightly bizarrely, Vanilla Ice appeared as Captain Hook in a 2011 production of Peter Pan in Chatham, Kent before returning to music in 2013 when he toured with New Kids on the Block, although last year he participated in the US celebrity version of Strictly Come Dancing, called Dancing with the Stars.

His latest project is designing and building luxury mansions in Florida, which he then sells on for a profit – called flipping in the US.

His efforts are all documented in a US reality TV series called The Vanilla Ice Project and the latest to be sold is this house, priced at $2.395million.

NOT JUST A PRETTY FACE

By Peter Keenan

GREAT design means not just looking good, but being good – and the recently-refreshed Volvo V40 hatchback achieves both.

Let's deal with the looking good first.

The replacement for the S40 saloon was launched in 2012 and has since become Volvo's best selling model in the UK.

So it is no surprise that when it came to the revamp the Swedish car company's designers decided to tweak the exterior rather than indulge in any wholesale changes.

So the face of the car now features natty 'Thor's Hammer' LED headlights – borrowed from its larger siblings the XC90 and S90 – and a more in-your-face Volvo badge.

The R-Design Nav Plus model I drove also features silver matt door mirrors, front and rear tailgate emblems, roof spoiler and natty twin exhaust pipes plus 18-inch alloy wheels which all add to the party.

The sleek lines, sloping roof and neat rear end are left intact so the V40 remains easy on the eye.

The 'being good' part of the equation is supplied under the bonnet.

This one had the refined D3 2.0-litre diesel engine which is a delight producing 148bhp and bags of pulling power.

You're not likely to experience the top speed of 130mph unless on a track, but you will be able to enjoy a 0-62mph time of a shade over eight seconds – helped by a slick six-speed manual transmission.

The real treat comes though in the fuel economy figures.

I know the 'miles to go before refuelling' guide can be a bit flaky, but after an hour's driving mine had gone UP – from 500 to 520 miles. By my rough calculations I was getting 60mpg-plus during a week of mixed motoring while carbon dioxide emissions come in at a tax-busting 99g/km.

The V40 is also available with D2 and D4 oil burners producing 118bhp and 187bhp respectively.

A number of petrol alternatives are also offered.

It is nimble to drive with the R-Design models getting a sports suspension and bigger alloy wheels making it agile and sure-footed in corners while still absorbing most of the humps and hollows littering Britain's roads.

The interior is plush with comfortable supportive seats and understated bits of bling that enhance the quality feel. The steering wheel was festooned with controls giving access to most of the car's goodies.

It's quite chunky so feels good in your hands.

Volvo's classic 'floating' centre console remains in place and for those who prefer buttons and dials to a modern touchscreen set-up it is a delight.

That throwback aside, the V40 is bang up to date on the technology front.

The Nav models include Volvo Sensus Connect featuring a seven-inch screen, voice control, web apps and internet browser.

The Swedes have always prided themselves on the protection given to drivers and passengers in their cars.

The V40 more than upholds that tradition with R-Design models including City Safety, side impact and whiplash protection systems. Also thrown in are stability control, pedestrian protection, a tyre pressure monitoring system and enough airbags to refloat the Titanic.

Optional extras include amber lights strategically placed to warn the driver if something is approaching through your blind spot – especially idiots doing 100mph-plus on the motorway – or if something gets too close in front.

TESTED Volvo V40 D3 R-Design Nav Plus

CARE & SUPPORT WORKERS

A locally based charitable organisation, providing high quality specialist care and support to people of all ages with complex neurological conditions, epilepsy and associated disabilities.

We employ over 700 people in the local area!

"I love the variety.....So different from other care work"
"I have been made to feel so welcome!"

Great Training!

I love the variety of activities

I get to make a real positive difference!

Opportunities to join a large, reputable local employer with a growing workforce:

We operate a number of Residential Care bungalows, (with nursing and therapy support), for over 100 adults. Based in beautiful parkland, but also close to nearby towns and amenities our teams put into practice our positive ethos and values and make a real difference.

Established over 100 years ago our values & commitment to give vulnerable people the best possible quality of life makes St Elizabeth's a special place to work.

Our staff tell us that the roles we offer at St Elizabeth's are varied, challenging and, above all, rewarding. You would work within our staff teams, supporting residents in all aspects of their daily living i.e. personal care, social and domestic skills whilst promoting and enabling their independence. We offer a supportive environment for staff, all of whom have their own personal development plan and we offer a range of in-house training and nationally recognised qualifications.

A full time staff member works 37.5 hours on a shift pattern (we also have part time hours available, working a shift pattern).

We offer an excellent range of staff benefits, including:

- Childcare vouchers scheme
- Life assurance
- Contributory pension
- High street retail/leisure discounts
- Subsidised transport scheme
- Generous holidays
- Discounted gym membership
- Free on-site parking facilities
- On-site cafeteria

If you are motivated and enthusiastic with good communication skills and have an insight into care work and an interest in a career in this field, we would very much like to hear from you.

For further information about job opportunities and St Elizabeth's or to apply, please visit our website: www.stelizabeths.org.uk or telephone 01279 843451.

Offers are subject to pre-employment checks including an enhanced DBS check.

Easter in Cornwall & Eden

Departing on 14 April 2017

Take a magical trek through the world's largest indoor rainforest this Easter, before enjoying the scent and colour of the Californian grasslands and South Africa. The Eden Project is a breathtaking recreation of some of the most precious regions on earth, so we enjoy a full day here on Easter Sunday, following a visit to the Easter Food and Craft Fair held in the grounds of the beautiful manor house of Treereife. Plus, no visit to Cornwall is complete without spending some time along its glorious coastline, so we have also arranged visits to the pretty resorts of St Ives and Looe.

Prices Includes:

- Private coach travel from your local area
- Three nights' stay with three course evening meal & cooked breakfast
- Visit to the Treereife Easter Food & Craft Fair
- Entrance to the Eden Project
- Visits to St Ives & Looe

Essex County Council

(Various Roads, District of Epping Forest) (Temporary Prohibition of Traffic & Clearway) (No.1) Order 2017

Notice is hereby given that the Essex County Council intends, not less than seven days from the date of this notice, to make the above Order under Section 14(1) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.

Effect of the order:

1. To temporarily close the various lengths of road in the District of Epping Forest as specified:

Road	Description	Alternative route
Sewalds Hall Road, North Weald Bassett	From its junction with Hastingwood Road to a point approximately 233 metres south/east	No diversion available for this closure
Paris Hall Lane, North Weald Bassett	From its junction with Hastingwood Road to a point approximately 84 metres south/east	No diversion available for this closure
Old House Lane, Roydon	From its junction with B181 Epping Road to a point approximately 458 metres east.	No diversion available for this closure
Epping Lane, Theydon Mount/ Stapleford Tawney	From its junction with A113 London Road to its junction with Mount Road, a distance of approximately 1340 metres.	Epping Lane, B172 Abridge Road, A113 Ongar Road/ London Road and reverse.
A121 Goldings Hill, Loughton	From its junction with B172 Jacks Hill to its junction with Millsmead Way, a distance of approximately 2120 metres.	Northbound: A121 Church Hill/High Road, A104 High Road Southbound, A1199 High Road, A104 High Road Woodford Green/High Road/ Epping New Road. Southbound: A104 Epping New Road, A121 High Road/ Church Hill.
B172 Coppice Row/Jacks Hill, Theydon Bois/ Loughton Town/ Waltham Abbey	From its junction with A121 Goldings Hill to its junction with Piercing Hill, a distance of approximately 2353 metres.	Piercing Hill, Theydon Road, B1393 High Road/Epping Road and reverse.
B181 Epping Road, Roydon	From its junction with B1133 Water Lane to its junction with Common Road, a distance of approximately 374 metres.	Common Road, Nazeing Common, Waltham Road, B194 Holyfield Road/ Crooked Mile, Crooked Mile, Sewardstone Road, A121 Dowding Way/Honey Lane/ Woodriden Hill, B1393 Epping Road/High Road/ High Street/Palmers Hill/ Thornwood Road/High Road, Thornwood/London Road, A414 London Road, A1169 Southern Way, Water Lane and reverse
B181 Epping Road, Roydon/ Epping Upland	From its junction with Epping Long Green to a point approximately 749 metres south.	B181 Epping Road, B1133 Water Lane, A1169 Southern Way, A414 London Road, B1393 London Road/High Road, Thornwood/Thornwood Road/Palmers Hill, B181 Lindsey Street/Epping Road and reverse.

2. A temporary 'No Stopping' restriction will be introduced on both sides of carriageway on the above lengths of roads for the duration of the closure to facilitate the works. Signs will be installed indicating when the No Stopping restriction will be in force.

The Essex County Council (Epping Forest District) (permitted parking area and special parking area) (Consolidation) Order 2016 will be temporarily amended to include the temporary 'No Stopping at Any Time' restriction and suspend any existing parking and waiting restrictions on the above lengths of roads only. All other restrictions and exemptions contained in the aforementioned Order and Amendments to that Order shall remain in force.

The works being undertaken will take place within an 18 month period from 6th February 2017, exact dates will be specified on <http://roadworks.org/>. The roads will be closed to facilitate each phase and then re-opened to the public. Access will be maintained for pedestrians and emergency services. Diversion routes will be signed at each location and residents will be informed of the dates of each phase via letter/leaflet drop and advanced warning signs on the road.

Phase One

Pre-surface patching works. These works comprise filling any surface defects and raising/replacing worn iron works (manhole covers and gully's) as well as removal of cat's eyes if present.

Phase Two

Surface dressing. The process entails spraying the road with bitumen and covering it with granite chippings, after which the road is then rolled, which along with the action of the traffic, embeds the chippings into the surface. The road will be swept within 48 hours and after 7 days. The bitumen part of the surface dressing as well as securing the chippings to the existing surface will seal the old road surface, thus preventing the ingress of water which causes deterioration of the road surface and will improve skid resistance.

Phase Three

- a) Reinstatement of white lines if required. Reinstatement of any road markings.
- b) Reinstatement of any road studs.

For all enquiries please contact our Contact Centre on 0345 603 7631.

The Order will come into effect on 6th February 2017 and may continue in force for 18 months or until the works have been completed, whichever is the earlier.

ARIES MARCH 21 - APRIL 20

The key to a successful week is taking what is said to you with a pinch of salt. A sense of humour will be a useful tool, especially when dealing with those who are younger than you are. Try not to be influenced in business by someone who may be more experienced, but not as wise as you are. Ring now so I can show you why this is such an exciting year for work and relationships.

A flirtatious feel to your chart could see you getting yourself into all sorts of precarious positions. Know how far is too far to go and make sure you don't lead people on with plans and ideas you have no intention of seeing through. If you tell it like it is, then you will get the respect that is so important to a sign such as you. Ring now so I can talk you through the games Mercury is trying to play.

CANCER JUNE 22 - JULY 22

There is a more creative feel to your chart which could see you trying your hand at all sorts of new things. Try to be gentle with the older generation who are likely to be going through more than you realise. An open ear will do much to improve their confidence and to soothe their paranoia. Cancelled trips make way for better plans. Ring now for an important message from the planet Jupiter.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 303 65p PER MINUTE

LEO JULY 23 - AUGUST 23

Know you want justice for something which went wrong, but it would be far better for you to wait and bide your time. You are about to learn that others are willing to take responsibility for their actions and that you were in the right. To push too soon could see you ending up the scapegoat. Ring now to hear why this is such a lucky week for first dates and meetings.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 304 65p PER MINUTE

VIRGO AUGUST 24 - SEPTEMBER 22

Our close ones surprise us this week with announcements about changes they desire. Hang on in there. Virgo, as many of the signs are taking for the sake of it. It will be February before we are able to separate fact from fiction. Going over facts and figures on Monday and Friday can save you a small fortune. Ring now to hear why you must not be afraid of legal risks.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 305 65p PER MINUTE

LIBRA SEPTEMBER 23 - OCTOBER 23

The Moon makes for a really emotional weekend where you may find it hard to know whose words you can trust and who is taking you for a fool. Travel plans have prove exciting and it will be worth your while thinking about extending any trips or making them of a personal as well as a professional nature. Ring now so we can deal with the personal issue which has been on your mind.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 306 65p PER MINUTE

SCORPIO OCTOBER 24 - NOVEMBER 21

Those you work with have made it hard for you to tell the truth. There is an air of secrecy about your chart which could have seen you telling white lies which you now regret. Time spent planning your next move for February is time well spent. Know this and work on what you want to happen. Not just what others are pushing for. Ring now so I can bring out your best attributes.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 307 65p PER MINUTE

SAGITTARIUS NOVEMBER 22 - DECEMBER 20

You're feeling more sensitive than you'd like to and this can be a good thing. You see Sagittarius, it gives you the opportunity to explore the feelings you have been pushing to one side. Allow yourself to feel your way through this week. It's the key to you making the right choices for your future. Ring now to hear why I know 2017 will be the year of your biggest commitments yet.

CAPRICORN DECEMBER 21 - JANUARY 20

You have said and done some things you are not happy about. Those concerned have moved on and so should you Capricorn. Eyes forward must be your mantra from here on in my friend. It is the only way you'll get to see the several new and very lucrative offers which Jupiter is bringing your way this week. Ring now to hear how the written word can secure you great deals in February.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 309 65p PER MINUTE

AQUARIUS JANUARY 21 - FEBRUARY 19

A close one really getting on you, or could it be that you just need a little time and space to remember who you are and what is important to you? Try to make time for a break so that you can step back and look at the bigger picture. You'll soon see that what you thought was serious, no longer is. Gemini's link to intriguing social invites. Ring now so we can talk about the many choices in front of you.

FOR WEEKLY AND MONTHLY READINGS CALL 0911 8532 310 65p PER MINUTE

PISCES FEBRUARY 20 - MARCH 20

A dry sense of humour Mars has placed over you is making it difficult for you to know if you are making friends or foes. Know how far is too far to go or you could end up offending those who have only just made up with. A new friend in the workplace can do much for your career, but know when and how to keep business and personal separate. Ring now so I can explain in detail.

'Artificial is best'

INVESTMENT: The Harlow Arena's 3G pitch means Hawks' home games are never postponed

Harlow boss says more teams should invest in 3G

By Matt Storey
matt.storey@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Town manager Danny Chapman believes other teams are crazy not to invest in 3G pitches.

A lot of games have been postponed across all leagues recently but not for Harlow, who have not suffered with frozen pitches due to their artificial surface.

They have played regularly picking up a 1-0 win over Tonbridge Angels on Saturday and a 3-1 victory on Tuesday against Metropolitan Police.

Chapman said: "I think teams are crazy not to invest in 3G pitches.

"It has its critics, with a lot of people who talk about how it is bad for the knees, something I think is complete and utter nonsense. It is more in people's heads than it is their bodies.

"The 3G pitch is very useful. We still have not had a game called off and as you see, there are games getting postponed all over the place.

"Even last Saturday when it was bitterly cold it was not a problem. It does help us. It means that your games are on and if you can pick up some consistency, it does not get broken up by having a game being called off."

The Hawks manager knows that the price is prohibiting some teams from installing 3G pitches.

Cost

"I think the biggest reason why clubs do not invest in them is because of the amount of money that it costs to put down." His side may have won two in a row, but he feels the FA Trophy defeat to York City did hinder his team after the match.

He added: "It had an effect. "Everyone thought we deserved something out of the game, even if it was a draw.

"I think the amount of work and effort the boys put in did take a lot out of them. I'm not making that the whole excuse but it did take a little bit out of us. It took a week or so to recover from that game."

Alex Read scored his 150th and 151st goals for the club, as he grabbed a brace on Tuesday night and the Hawks boss insisted the striker's desire to leave hasn't stopped him from putting in quality displays.

"He is still transfer listed," Chapman confirmed. "But at the moment he's performing to the levels we need him at, especially in the last two games.

"He's been excellent. As long as he keeps doing it right then there will not be a problem.

"Everyone has seen it before when a transfer request goes in and it can become disruptive. Thankfully for us that has not happened."

Dadson nets the only goal in Angels win

JUNIOR DADSON'S first goal since returning from injury proved the difference as Harlow Town ground out their first win in five games with a 1-0 win over Tonbridge Angels.

They then backed that victory up with a 2-1 win over Metropolitan Police on Tuesday night, thanks to Alex Read's double, which leaves them just three points off the play-offs.

Harlow welcomed Angels to The Harlow Arena, looking for their first win in 2017.

The Hawks set the pace in the opening stages and the first chance fell to Harlow when Fabion Simms glanced a header well wide on nine minutes.

Harlow were on the front foot and there was a clear improvement in their performance compared to the previous game, looking much sharper throughout the pitch.

The first real opening resulted in the only goal of the game on 32 minutes.

A lovely weighted pass from midfielder Mario Noto played Junior Dadson through on goal. He steadied himself well before cannoning a right foot drive off the post and into the back of the net to give Harlow a deserved lead.

This gave the Hawks the impetus to put further pressure on their opponents, the impressive Noto pulling the strings once again. This time he provided a clever reverse pass back to Read, who stung the palm of Anthony Di Bernando between the sticks.

Harlow had a claim for a penalty just before the hour mark. Dadson produced a lovely flick over the defence for Read to latch onto, and with centre-half Mitchell Nelson on the wrong side of the forward, he bundled him over, however, nothing was given.

Tonbridge had offered very little, but Jack Parter tried to conjure up something special, going on a weaving run before slicing his shot high and wide.

Tonbridge's best chance arrived on 80 minutes, but it was a relatively comfortable save for David Hughes following a Ugo Udoji header, with the attacker getting no power behind it.

Then, in the dying seconds, Angels' star Luke Allen had a golden opportunity to snatch a point but his deflected volley veered just wide of the post.

Diesel motors to table tennis victory

HOTSHOT table tennis players from Harlow schools took top honours at the annual Jack Petchey Essex Regional Singles competition, in partnership with Table Tennis England.

The event was held at BATT'S Table Tennis Club in Harlow last Friday and bought together 52 players from 18 schools across Essex.

All were playing for a chance to compete in the Jack Petchey London and Essex Schools Singles Finals being held on Saturday June 10 at the University of East London. The format was a round robin.

In the U13 boys' category Diesel Harvey, aged 13, from Passmores Academy overcame Jake Harvey, 12, from Mark Hall Academy in the final, winning the sets 11-5 and 11-4.

Diesel, who has been playing table tennis for two years, got into the sport because his father plays.

He said: "I enjoy this competition and it's good to play different people. I can't wait for the final."

BATT'S coach Josh Dye said: "Diesel is a future champion."

BATT'S is the top club in Essex and one of the best in the country so he is in the right place."

In the U13 girls' event Alana Mansfield, 12, from Burnt Mill Academy, took top honours beating Harley Wood, 12, from Clacton 11-6, 11-8.

Mansfield was a winner in the U11 girls' category last year and has already played in the Six Nations International Schools team competition held in Guernsey last year.

She also plays netball, basketball and swims.

She said: "I got into table tennis because my dad plays."

"A coach came to our school and now I play at BATT'S all the time. It was great to win and I hope to do just as well in the final."

In the U16 boys' event Casey Mansfield, 14, also from Burnt Mill Academy, was the runner up, losing to James Goddard from Wickford, 9-11, 11-4, 8-11 in the final.

Yaz Harvey, 16, from Passmores Academy, was second to Gracie Firkins from Clacton in the U16 girls' final.

CHAMPION: Diesel Harvey
